The Organization and Purpose of the Association of College Honor Societies

Higher education and the ACHS, like all categories of Greek letter organizations, face the problem of developing and maintaining high standards in college honor societies. Individual associations and conferences in the general social and professional fields are also studying ways and means of improving conditions. Educational associations and councils are cooperating. While progress was slow and difficult at times during the early history of the ACHS, great progress has been made since 1945 by joint action of college administrators and faculty members and representatives of the major societies and fraternities and their respective associations. The real solution to the problem requires such a cooperative combination of forces.

The objective of the ACHS now is to encourage all general and specialized honor societies to join forces for the establishment and maintenance of desirable standards and useful functions in higher education, and for the achievement of appropriate recognition of member societies of the Council of ACHS. To this end, the ACHS invites qualified societies to affiliate with it. Societies that do not meet the standards will be helped in every way possible to come up to them. Special attention is called to the Bylaws of the ACHS and to the statements of definitions, standards, and requirements for membership and functions of honor societies.

Progress toward achieving the present objective of the ACHS is found in two specific developments. The first of these is that the editor of Baird's Manual gained editorial assistance in the problem of classifying the numerous societies. Extension of common categories is an instance of cooperation in maintaining honor society standards.

The second development is closely related to the question of honor society standards. In a letter dated April 13, 1973, the U.S. Civil Service Commission stated, "Membership in a national honorary society meets one of the requirements for entrance at the GS-7 level in numerous professional and technical occupations in the Federal service. However, applicants must meet all of the requirements as described in the particular Federal Job Announcement covering the positions for which they apply." This affords a very tangible acknowledgment that organizations maintaining honor society standards merit distinction.

The third development is the approval of ACHS standards by the Council for Advancement of Standards in Higher Education (CAS) for its honor society standards in April 2005. These standards in the functional areas of higher education are used by institutions in self-studies for accreditation purposes.

The Honor Society in American Colleges

The idea that underlies the honor societies in American colleges and universities is threefold. They exist primarily to recognize the attainment of scholarship of a superior quality. In the second place, a few societies recognize the development of leadership qualities, character, and good campus citizenship in addition to a strong scholarship record. Thirdly, and to the degree that they make this recognition a thing to be coveted, they encourage the production of superior scholarship and leadership.

To accomplish these objectives, it is clear that an honor society must define and maintain a truly high standard of eligibility for membership and achieve sufficient status by so doing that membership becomes something to be highly valued. The second point is greatly advanced if the significance of membership is appreciated over a wide area; thus, the society with a number of chapters at accredited institutions is stronger than one that is purely local, and societies known and admired outside the college may be regarded as having achieved maturity and success.

The honor society has followed the expansion and specialization of higher education in America. When Phi Beta Kappa was organized in 1776, there was no thought given to its field, since all colleges then in existence were for the training of men for the service of the church and the state. With the expansion of education into new fields a choice had to be made, and Phi Beta Kappa elected to operate in the field of liberal arts and sciences. Although this was not finally voted in until 1898, the trend was evident earlier, as the 1880s saw the establishment of Tau Beta Pi in the field of engineering and Sigma Xi in scientific research.

Early in the 20th century, other honor societies came into being. One of these, Phi Kappa Phi, was started by the presidents of three state universities, with the thought that these institutions should have their honor society; later, its field was wisely extended to include any institution of university scope, accepting into membership superior students of all schools of which they are a part. More recently another scholarship honor society covering all academic fields, Alpha Chi, was organized. With these exceptions, and the exception of Alpha Kappa Mu, Delta Epsilon Sigma, and Alpha Sigma Nu that had origins in Black, Catholic, or Jesuit colleges and universities, scholarship honor societies have followed the earlier tradition of selecting a specific field of coverage. Thus, for example: Delta Mu Delta elects in the field of business administration, Pi Kappa Lambda in music, and Rho Chi in pharmacy.

Three interesting and important variations have developed since 1900. One of these recognizes the values of extracurricular activities and the development of general campus citizenship. Prime requisite for election is meritorious attainments in all-around leadership in college life. In this field, Omicron Delta Kappa and Mortar Board have achieved excellent reputations. It is to be noted that both have a strong requirement of scholarship.

A second variation is represented by the numerous societies that draw their membership from the various departments of study, recognizing good work in the field of the student's special field of study. These societies are generally known as departmental, or specialized honor societies and are represented by such societies as Sigma Pi Sigma in physics; Alpha Epsilon Delta in pre-medicine; Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha in forensics; Phi Alpha Theta in history; Eta Kappa Nu in electrical engineering; Pi Tau Sigma in mechanical engineering; Tau Sigma Delta in architecture and allied arts; Pi Sigma Alpha in political science; Phi Sigma in the biological sciences; Phi Sigma Iota in foreign languages; Alpha Pi Mu in industrial engineering; Pi Gamma Mu in social science; Chi Epsilon in civil engineering; Kappa Tau Alpha in journalism; Phi Sigma Tau in philosophy; and Sigma Theta Tau in nursing.

The third variation recognizes scholastic achievement during the freshman year and encourages its members toward higher goals. This field of freshman scholarship honor societies is represented by Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda Delta.

The fourth variation, approved in 1993, recognizes achievement in associate degree programs. This field is represented by Alpha Beta Gamma and Psi Beta.

College Fraternities and Societies Defined

The following statements defining college professional and social fraternities and honor and recognition societies with their basic purposes, standards, and membership requirements have been issued by the respective groups for distribution to faculty and administration members and advisors, students leaders, and fraternal officers in general.

HONOR SOCIETIES

An honor society is an association of primarily collegiate members and chapters whose purposes are to encourage and recognize superior scholarship and/or leadership achievement either in broad fields of education or in departmental fields at either undergraduate or graduate levels. Basic standards and requirements for membership include the following:

1. General honor societies that base membership eligibility primarily upon the attainment of high scholarship in a broad field of study shall elect members from the highest 20 percent of the class in scholarship.
2. General honor societies that base membership eligibility primarily upon all-around leadership attainment in student affairs shall elect from the entire institution honor students from the highest 35 percent of the class in scholarship.
3. Specialized honor societies that elect persons actively interested in a specific field shall elect from the upper 35 percent of the class in scholarship.
4. Election to membership shall be irrespective of membership in or affiliation with other organizations and associations.
5. Membership shall be conferred solely on the basis of character and specified eligibility. See pp. 18 and 19 for more detail.
6. No solicitation or propaganda, such as rushing and social pressure, shall be used to ensure acceptance of invitation to membership.
7. Collegiate chapters of member ACHS societies shall be established only in colleges and universities that grant the associate, baccalaureate, or higher degrees and are accredited by the appropriate regional accrediting agency.

RECOGNITION SOCIETIES

—Association of College Honor Societies

A recognition society is an organization that confers membership in recognition of a student's interest and participation in some field of collegiate study or activity with more liberal membership requirements than are prescribed for general and specialized honor societies.

GENERAL SOCIAL FRATERNITIES

Men's general college social fraternities function by mutual selection on the part of members and prospects and include both student chapters and alumni associations. These fraternities serve to fulfill developmental needs of their members through programs of academic enrichment, leadership experiences, social interaction, community service, and collegiate involvement. Chapters are located at fully accredited institutions and are affiliated with national organizations, most of which are associated together in either the National Interfraternity Conference or the Association of College Fraternities.

The National Panhellenic Conference is a body composed of member women's fraternities, or sororities, each of which is autonomous as a social, Greek-letter society of college women, undergraduate and alumnae. Women's fraternities are one of the extras of campus life, enhancing the value of a college education by fostering scholarship, self-discipline, and participation in worthwhile student activities. High ideals of member groups of NPC are based upon ethical standards of conduct, mutual assistance, and service to college, community, and humanity.

PROFESSIONAL FRATERNITIES

A professional fraternity is a specialized fraternity which limits its student membership to a specific field of professional education in accredited colleges and universities offering courses leading to recognized degrees therein; which maintains mutually exclusive membership in that field, but may initiate members of the general social fraternities; and which organizes its group life specifically to promote professional competency and achievement within its field. The professional fraternity confines its membership to qualified students (and faculty members) in a particular profession who are pursuing an organized curriculum leading to a professional degree in that field, has a minimum scholastic requirement for membership usually above passing, elects its members after a careful investigation and generally by a unanimous secret ballot. It initiates its members early in their professional college life, enabling them to participate actively and beneficially in the professional aims of the fraternity, holds frequent meetings, conducts professional and social activities, and frequently maintains a chapter house or quarters. Professional fraternities also sponsor programs of special value to alumni members.

—Professional Interfraternity Conference

Professional fraternity—A specialized fraternity which confines its membership to a specific field of professional education in accredited colleges and universities; maintains mutually-exclusive membership in that professional field, but may initiate members of the social college fraternities; and organizes its group life specifically to promote professional competency and achievement within its field.

Undergraduates who are elected shall rank not lower than the highest thirty-five percent of their class in general scholarship. The cumulative scholastic record of the student as interpreted by the institution where membership is to be conferred shall be the basis for computing scholastic eligibility for the purpose of classification in ranks.

Persons elected to membership in Specialized Lower Division Honor Societies shall have accumulated the number of credit hours used by the institution to designate full-time status with at least 12 hours in courses leading to the associate degree. Persons elected to membership in Specialized Graduate Honor Societies shall have accumulated the number of graduate credit hours used by the institution to designate one full-term equivalency for one academic term.

Section 4. Research Honor Societies. A Research Honor Society is one that receives into membership persons who have demonstrated achievement in a field of pure or applied science. A. Active voting member societies shall meet all requirements for membership in the Association.

B. Associate nonvoting member societies shall meet all requirements for membership except those regarding age or size as specified in Article III, Section 6.

Section 6. Election of a Society to Membership. Election to membership shall be by a four-fifths affirmative vote of the Council at the Annual Meeting.

Section 7. Dues, Fees, and Assessments. The amount of any dues, fees, or assessments for any class of membership in the Association shall be established by the Council. The dues year shall be the same as the fiscal year.

Section 8. Standards and Requirements for Society Membership. For membership in the Association, a society shall conform to the following minimal standards:

A. To ensure that all Association members have developed a proven record of exhibiting excellence in scholarship, service, programs, and governance, a society shall have existed as a national organization for at least ten years before becoming an active voting member of the Association and for at least five years before becoming an associate nonvoting member of the Association. Further, a society shall have met all the standards for affiliation continuously for at least one full year.

B. Election of persons to membership in a member society shall be conferred solely on the basis of character and specified eligibility, and shall be irrespective of membership in or affiliation with other organizations and associations. No solicitation or propaganda, such as rushing or social pressure, shall be used to ensure invitation to or acceptance of membership. Invitation to membership must be from an official chapter. Chapters shall not discriminate on any basis prohibited by law.

C. A society shall have ten or more active collegiate chapters located in two or more geographic areas of the United States. An active collegiate chapter shall be defined as one which holds elections to membership at least annually, except in national emergencies, and includes active student members. An inactive chapter shall be one in which no elections have been held for two or more consecutive years.

D. Collegiate chapters of societies shall be established, maintained, or reactivated only in U.S. colleges and universities that grant the associate, baccalaureate, or higher degrees and that are accredited by one of the following accrediting agencies: the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools, the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the Northwest Association of Schools, Colleges, and Universities; and the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. Two-year vocational, technical, and career institutions offering general or specialized programs which lead to career opportunities shall not be eligible, except those institutions accredited by the aforementioned regional accrediting agencies. No society shall grant a charter to a chapter in any institution which fails to meet fully the standards and requirements of the Association. Formal chartering of campus chapters shall require approval by a petition from the institution and, if appropriate, the college/department. Official action of the governing body of the honor society is also required.

E. Societies that allow for the establishment of collegiate chapters at non-U.S. institutions of higher learning shall be responsible for determining that such institutions meet and maintain the Association's standards and requirements with regard to the mission and quality of eligible institutions.

F. To further the purposes of this organization, the organizing instrument for each society must specifically state that the society is organized on a membership basis. This structure is necessary to ensure that the interests of individual members are advanced. Further, the organizing instrument and bylaws of a society must assure democratic participation in the society's governance. At a minimum, individual members of each society shall have the right to elect all members of its governing board, either in an individual or representative capacity, and shall have the power to adopt, amend, or repeal policies of the society. At least once every four years, a member society shall take the following actions, either at a national convention or through an equivalent democratic process; conduct elections of members of its governing board; establish authority for control of the affairs of the society; and present a report of national finances covering the period since the immediately preceding financial report. Each requirement set forth in this subsection (F) shall be addressed in the organizing instrument and/or bylaws of a society.

Sufficient cause for such suspension or termination of membership may be violation of these Bylaws or any lawful rule or practice adopted by the Association, or other conduct deemed by the Council to be prejudicial to the best interest of the Association. Charges or complaints regarding a member society may be submitted in writing to the Executive Director or President by any member of the Council and, when submitted, shall be investigated by the Board of Directors. A statement of the charges shall be sent by a means that includes obtaining a signed receipt [e.g.: USPS Certified Mail, FedEx, UPS, etc.] to the last recorded address of the member society, accompanied by notice of the time and place of the meeting at which the charges are to be considered. At least thirty days' notice shall be given, and the member society shall have the opportunity to be represented in person or to be represented by counsel and to present any defense to such charges before action is taken by the Council. The member society must notify the Executive Director at least 21 days in advance of the meeting if the member society decides to be represented by counsel. The Council may adopt such rules as may be necessary to assure due process to the member society. The decision for suspension or termination shall be by a four-fifths affirmative vote of the Council at the Annual Meeting.

Section 12. Reinstatement. Any member society having resigned from membership or having forfeited membership for failure to pay dues, fees, or assessments, may be reinstated upon application to the Board of Directors through the Executive Director, upon meeting such uniform terms and conditions as may be established by the Council, and by a four-fifths affirmative vote of the Council at the Annual Meeting.

- To stimulate and encourage mental development.
- To stand for freedom of mind and spirit and for democracy of learning.

- To preserve valuable traditions and customs.
- To associate outstanding leaders in mutual understanding for the advancement of society in the art of democratic living.

Psi Chi — Psychology

Founded at Yale University, September 4, 1929
Admitted to ACHS: 1965
No of Active Chapters: 1125
Total Membership: 595962
Number of Regions: 6
Publications: Eye on Psi Chi, Psi Chi Journal of Undergraduate Research

PURPOSE: To encourage, stimulate, and maintain scholarship of the individual members in all fields, particularly in psychology, and to advance the science of psychology.

ELIGIBILITY:

Student members shall be students who are majoring or minoring in psychology or a closely related field and who are enrolled in undergraduate or graduate programs in the institution of higher education represented by the chapter at the time of induction.

1. Undergraduate criteria. Undergraduate students shall have completed at least three semesters (or five quarters) of full-time coursework at an institution of higher education and have a cumulative grade point average (GPA) that ranks in the top 35% of their class. Psi Chi defines class as all sophomores, all juniors, and all seniors across an institution. The top 35% cutoffs for each class shall be determined using the largest group for which comparison grades are available—the entire institution when available or, if necessary, the unit that houses the psychology department. If the top 35% cutoff for a chapter falls below 3.0, chapters must use a minimum overall cumulative GPA of 3.0 on a 4.0 scale. The intent of an honor society is to represent excellence among peers. Consequently, the use of a GPA can be used as a proxy for class rank if rank data are not readily available. However, the GPA should reflect distinction among students within the major and across the institution and therefore be at least 3.3 or higher on a 4.0 scale where: A = 4, B = 3, C = 2, D = 1, F = 0. Furthermore, chapters should endeavor to calibrate their scholastic standards regularly to ensure that the criteria of excellence among peers are maintained. Any chapter, at its discretion, may establish higher scholastic criteria for induction than the Society's standards.

In addition, undergraduate students must also have completed nine semester hours (or fourteen quarter hours) of psychology courses for which they have earned a minimum GPA of 3.0 on a 4.0 scale. These standards are in accordance with the minimum standards of the Association of College Honor Societies.

2. Graduate Criteria. Graduate students must be accepted and enrolled in a psychology graduate program (or a psychology-related graduate program) that includes required course work offered by faculty with doctorates in psychology. Graduate students must also have completed nine semester hours (or fourteen quarter hours) of graduate courses and shall have a minimum overall cumulative graduate grade point average of 3.0 on a 4.0 scale in their program. In addition, none of a student's individual course grades may be below the minimum acceptable standard of the program in which the student is enrolled.

Alumni Members

1. Definition. Any individual who was inducted into Psi Chi and is no longer a current student is considered an alumni member.
2. Alumni Inductees. Persons graduated from an institution prior to the establishment of the Psi Chi chapter may be elected to membership by that local chapter if they meet the current criteria for student membership based their final transcript at that institution.
3. Faculty Members. Members of the faculty may be elected by the local chapter for an alumni member status in Psi Chi if they have a master's or doctorate in psychology or closely related field.

Distinguished Members

Distinguished members are prominent professionals associated with the field of psychology and/or who are individuals who have shown outstanding service to the mission of Psi Chi. Distinguished members are nominated, reviewed, and approved at the sole discretion of the Psi Chi Board of Directors. They are considered alumni members but they pay no dues or fees of any kind.
